Term 3 Week 8 & 9 Newsletter

Indigenous Literacy Day

- Indigenous Literacy Day is on September 7. This is a yearly initiative by Australia's Indigenous Literacy Foundation. Through literacy programs, the organization seeks to improve the lives and possibilities of Indigenous Australians.
- Australia's First People have a deep knowledge of community, culture, and land. These are concepts of "literacy" that the western world may not understand. We must redefine what literacy means for different communities and their needs.

- To create forward-thinking spaces without losing roots. Indigenous Literacy Day advocates people's right to an education in the languages they speak at home. It celebrates indigenous freedom of expression and participation in public life just as they are.

R U OK?

R U OK? Day is about staying connected and preventing suicide.

Our goals are to:

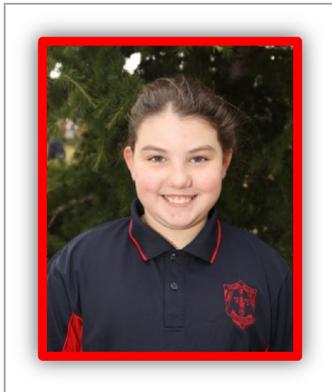

- Boost our confidence to connect and ask about life's difficulties
- Nurture our sense of responsibility to support others
- Strengthen our sense of belonging because we know people are there for us and
- Be relevant, strong, and dynamic.

Cultural Incursion

This week we welcomed Mr Albert Murray and Mr Rodney Eastman who provided a cultural incursion to deepen our knowledge of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories, Language, and culture.
